Food for Future

— eat sustainably —

November 2(THU), 2023

Sakata Hirata Hall, Nagoya University

※Online participation is welcomed!

【Timetable】 13:30~14:30 1st session Lecture
14:45~15:45 2nd session Pannel Discussion
16:00~17:00 3rd session Roundtable (Students only)

You may wonder how Russia's invasion of Ukraine and extreme weather events are threatening our food security and derailing our efforts to achieve the SDGs. It may not be easy to imagine how we eat and produce food will accelerate climate change and increase infectious diseases, and thus destabilize our food systems. The speaker will provide insights into the history behind the today's food systems, explore the relationship between food and the SDGs, and propose actions for planetary healthy eating practices.

【1st Session : Lecture】

Speaker : Miyuki Iiyama Program Director, Information Program, the Japan International Research Center
for Agricultural Sciences (JIRCAS)

Originally studying business and international relations in Keio University and University of Washington, Miyuki earned her MSc and Ph.D. degree in economics from the University of Tokyo. Her professional career included 10 years at the then World Agroforestry Centre, where she was especially assigned to do research on the evaluation of socio-economic and environmental viability of natural resource management within African smallholder systems. She joined JIRCAS in 2016, serving as Research Coordinator and Director of the Research Strategy Office, and since 2021 Program Director of the Information Program.
